U. S. Park Police Building Opens In Greenbelt Park

by Virginia Beauchamp

With a little luck the Greenbelt detachment of the Park Police expected to move into their new quarters just off Greenbelt Rd. in Greenbelt Park yesterday. The luck was needed because on Tuesday something went wrong with an electrical connection and there was no electricity. Some of the furniture was moved in on Tuesday but there was no assurance then that the move could be completed.

This was about par for the course. The story of the new station has been a saga of perpetual postponement and delay. Scheduled to open sometime last fall the building itself was virtually complete. But wet winter weather set in and the parking area adjacent could not be graded and paved. Then this spring during the grading process a small spring of water was uncovered. Putting in a drain and drying out the area for paving caused further delay. Finally the landscaping had to be finished. Even as late as Monday of this week graders were putting in final touches on the rear parking lot.

Jurisdiction

The local U. S. Park Police detachment will have jurisdiction over approximately 35,000 acres of land in addition to 19 miles of the Baltimore - Washington Parkway. Included are the Agricultural Research Center in Beltsville by request of the U. S. Dept. of Agriculture; Greenbelt Park; the Patuxent Wildlife Refuge east of the Parkway; the Food and Drug Administration building near Muirkirk Rd.; and that section of the Muirkirk area currently under lease to Pepco. Until now they have occupied a tiny building at the Powdermill Rd. entrance to the Beltsville Farm.

Ironically the former commanding officer of the unit, Lt. Adams, who suffered through the long series of delays this winter and who put up so long with the cramped quarters of the old post has just been promoted and transferred to duty in Washington and will not occupy the new building. In his place is Lt. Paul Burgus who took office on July 17. He heads a contingent of 34 men—five sergeants two desk sergeants and 26 privates. A total of eight vehicles counting a radar unit have been assigned for the use of men at the station. A U.S. Commissioner will have an office in the new building and he will hear cases in a courtroom there.

The New Building

The overwhelming impression on the visitor to the station is how attractively it blends into its parkland background. From the visitors' parking lot in front of the building one crosses a deep natural ravine by a small arched footbridge. Plantings of rhododendron and holly screen the walkway from the road but the ravine itself has been left in its original state except for some sodding down the steep slopes. Ferns, water plants, even (if our eyes were sharp) a bit of poison ivy at the bottom grow as they have always grown there.

From the foot bridge, one steps upon a stone terrace from which the main entrance opens. The building itself is one story high with stained plywood paneling and gray stone walls. The roof has wooden shingles. To the rear is a smaller parking lot for the official vehicles.

Inside the building are several offices; a squad room where roll call is taken and where the men receive their daily assignments; a workroom, partitioned into small cubicles to lend privacy between the desks; a courtroom; and a large reception room, which the two desk sergeants will overlook through window openings.

According to Lt. Burgus, an open

City Asks Continuance Of Covenants Suit

In response to a motion for summary judgment dismissing the city's suit against the developer Charles Bresler for allegedly violating the covenants on the Charlestowne Village tract, city solicitor Thomas R. Brooks submitted an 8-point brief last week to the Circuit Court, asking for continuance of the suit.

The brief said that the letter of December 23, 1965 which allegedly contained notice of the building permit for a 178-unit high-rise apartment, was sent before the permit was actually granted and that the letter "was not in fact delivered to the City Manager of Greenbelt as required by the covenants." Brooks stated that Bresler knew that the City Manager was away for Christmas and that the city offices were closed on December 24—the alleged date of delivery.

The brief further stated that Bresler misled the city into believing that he intended to comply with the covenants, when in fact he intended to violate them after "having falsely persuaded and induced (the city) to accept the covenants." The document alleged that Bresler had repeatedly advised the city that he had no plans for development of the tract and that building permits previously applied for were for another purpose.

Finally, the brief charged that Bresler had failed to secure the consent of the Mayor and City Council of Greenbelt in modifying the restrictions of the covenant with respect to high-rise and high-density development of the Charlestowne tract. The fact that Bresler unilaterally attempted to modify the covenants by filing a release of covenants in June 1964, Brooks said, is "clear evidence of (Bresler's) intention to defraud the (city)."

Labor Day Parade

The Greenbelt Annual Labor Day Parade is beginning to take form according to Parade Chairman Austin R. Green. Grand Marshal of Parade will be Greenbelt Mayor, Edgar Smith. Emcee will be Edward Conroy Member of the Maryland House of Delegates. Parade judges will be Major General Robert E. L. Eaton (Ret.), Air Force, presently Commander, American Legion Dept. of Maryland, and Sgt. Robert W. Mogel (D.C. Fire Dept.) representing H. A. Galotta District Fire Chief.

Congressman Hervey Machen and State Comptroller Louis L. Goldstein will be honored guests of the parade.

Leading the parade will be the U. S. Park Police Motor Cycle Detail. In the line of march thus far will be the Prince Georges Tall Cedars of Lebanon Band; Prince Georges Forest Cedarettes Ladies Aux. marching unit; Horse and Milk Wagon from Thompson Honor Dairy; Special, U.S. Army, 560th Maintenance Company (under the command of 1st Lt. Miller) marching unit and color guard, from Ft. George Meade; Special, U. S. Naval Ceremonial Guard, Washington, D.C. marching unit and color guard. A new feature this year will be the Prince Georges Artillery Unit of two Civil War Cannon which will honor units as they pass the reviewing stand.

house has tentatively been scheduled sometime during the month of October. Emphasis on tentative.

GHI-School Board Suit

The Prince Georges County Board of Education has responded to the suit filed by Greenbelt Homes, Inc. on the location of a senior high school on parcel 2, by a demurrer declaring the issue moot because the land has already been purchased by the school board. GHI is now preparing its reply. Arguments will be heard by the Circuit Court on August 30.

New Resident Suit Filed On Covenant Violations

A group of Lakecrest residents filed suit last week against Charles Bresler and associates, seeking injunctive relief against the construction of high-rise apartments and high-density development on the Charlestowne Village tract.

The suit charged that the residents were induced to purchase their homes on the promises of Bresler and his associates (Fleur Bresler, Abraham Chasanow, and Charles Burton Builders, Inc.) that the adjacent property (the Charlestowne tract) would be developed according to the covenants and agreements that Bresler had signed with the city. These promises, which called for the property to remain as parkland and to be developed at a rate of seven units per acre, have now been broken, the suit said.

The suit asks the court to issue an injunction enjoining further construction on the Charlestowne tract, except in accordance with the promises of the developers.

The four-count suit, filed by attorney Karl G. Feissner, also asks for monetary damages. In addition, a judgement is asked against the Home Indemnity Company which, the suit said, is responsible for the conduct of Chasanow as a licensed broker.

Jog Along Saturday

The monthly Jog Along of 1 and ½ miles for physical fitness, sponsored by the Greenbelt Jaycees, will be held this Saturday, July 30 at 10:30 a.m. at Braden Field. All those who finish this distance at their own pace will receive a trophy and the one who runs the longest distance a special trophy.

Labor Day Festival Race

The annual long-distance race of 15 kilometers (9.3 miles) from Greenbelt through the Agricultural Farm, which attracts many out-of-town runners will be held Sunday September 4 at 6:30 p.m. at Braden Field. This is the D.C. AAU Junior Championships but it is also an open race. A 1 and ½ mile race for physical fitness under the Run For Your Life program will also be held with the first runners over 40 and under 13 to finish receiving a trophy. Several other prizes will also be awarded. For information call Larry Noel (474-9362).

Named Forum Treasurer

Greenbelter Jack Shapiro has been appointed treasurer of the Prince Georges County Democratic Forum's Campaign Committee. Now retired, Shapiro has been a resident of Prince Georges County for over thirty years and has been very active in community, civic and political life.

Chas. Bresler Files $2,000,000 Suit Against News Review

A suit asking $2,000,000 in damages has been filed by Charles Bresler, local developer, against the Greenbelt News Review and its president, Alfred M. Skolnik. The suit quoted excerpts from three news stories, two headlines, three letters to the editor, and two editorials over a 9-month period as being printed "without reasonable justification or excuse."

The quoted material for the most part dealt with Bresler's transactions and negotiations with the city council and county school board regarding his land holdings.

The suit, filed by Bresler's attorney Abraham Chasanow, on July

18, in the Prince Georges Circuit Court charges the newspaper with publishing material that exposed Bresler to "public scorn, hatred, contempt, disgrace and ridicule" and degraded him "in the esteem or opinion of the residents of the City of Greenbelt and the State of Maryland and elsewhere."

The suit further said that the material was published for the purpose of imputing to Bresler "the commission of the crime of blackmail" and "corrupt and dishonest motives in his dealings with City, County and State officials and others."

The suit claims that such action injured Bresler in his business reputation and occupation and in his financial credit and transactions.

The News Review has engaged David Reich of the District and Maryland bar and the firm of Royall, Koegel, and Rogers of New York and Washington, D.C. to defend the action.

Labor Day Contest for Greenbelt Junior Miss

A search is underway for the high school senior who will be chosen as Greenbelt Junior Miss on Labor Day to represent Greenbelt in the Maryland State contest and possibly the national contest. The Junior Miss Contest run nationally by the Jaycees seeks to honor local outstanding high school seniors who best typify the American teenager. Emphasis is on scholarship and personal achievement. Contestants may win scholarships and other valuable awards at the state and national level.

Last year 14 contestants sponsored by the local business organizations and clubs competed for the title of Miss Greenbelt in a contest traditionally a part of the Labor Day Festival. This year's contest regulations include 1) Senior in good standing in area public or private high school starting in September but not graduating before 1 May 1967 2) Age at time of contest limited to between 15½ to 18½ by Labor Day 3) Single, never married 4) Sponsored by local organization 5) Not a first place winner of previous Greenbelt contest.

All Greenbelt organizations are again invited to participate and show their civic pride in the youth of the town. Appropriate publicity will be given to each sponsoring organization. Contestants who need sponsors may contact Tom White Jaycees 474-6440 and sponsors who need contestants may contact Jim Holbrook Toastmasters 345-2682.

Community Church News

The guest minister this week at the Greenbelt Community Church will be the Rev. James A. Harrell, Associate Methodist Chaplain at the University of Maryland.

Harrell received his B. A. from Vanderbilt University in 1960 and a B. D. from Yale in 1964. During 1962-1963 he attended classes at the theological college of Edinburgh University, Scotland.

Water Water Everywhere But . . .

Greenbelt residents are reminded that water restrictions have now been put into effect. This means that lawns go thirsty and cars go dirty. Remember, it is cheaper to buy new lawn seed next year than pay a hundred dollar fine for watering your lawn this year.

Bring the Baltimore Symphony to Greenbelt

Preliminary steps were undertaken to bring the Baltimore Symphony Orchestra to Greenbelt for a series of concerts during the forthcoming season. A "steering committee" of interested persons met in the office of Twin Pines on Wednesday, July 21 with Charles K. Winter, director of concert development for the Baltimore Symphony Orchestra.

Albert K. Herling was elected chairman of the "steering committee" and Seymour Kaplan was chosen as secretary. The committee's sole function is to set the ground work for the establishment of a Greenbelt Symphony Society.

A meeting to organize the Symphony Society will be held on Aug. 10 at 8 p.m. in the Co-op Hospitality Room. Those interested in working for the success of this endeavor are urged to call Mr. Kaplan at 474-9423 indicating their desire to attend the meeting on Aug. 10. This meeting is open to residents of all nearby communities as well as Greenbelters.

Voting Registration Days

Two day-long registrations for voters before this year's primary and general elections have been set for Saturday, July 30, and Tuesday August 9, at North End School (6th precinct), Center School (3rd precinct), and Springhill Lake Community House (8th precinct) from 9 a.m. to 9 p.m.

Every citizen of the United States, 21 years of age or older and without a serious criminal record is permitted to vote, providing he has been a resident of Maryland for one year and of the county for six months preceding the election. A citizen's registration may be removed if he fails to vote within five years, but re-registration is allowed.

Festival Comm. Meets

The Greenbelt Labor Day Festival Committee will hold a meeting on Wednesday, August 3 at 8 p.m. at the Youth Center. All participating groups are asked to have a representative at this meeting where booth dimensions and special events will be discussed.

George Harris

"Some people say I'm a trouble-maker and some people call me a kook," says Greenbelter George Harris. "But I think we live in a sick society where men can't be accepted as equals."

Thirty-nine-year-old Harris — a slim, intense man, with a closely-cropped black beard — was walking down Greenbelt Road a few weeks ago, carrying a sign urging an end to segregation in apartments, when he was struck on the head by an unseen assailant and knocked unconscious. No arrest has been made in the case.

Harris is an electronics technician at the University of Maryland. Every day, during the last three weeks in June, he walked to and from work carrying signs. One sign reads, "Support equal opportunity in rentals," and the other, "End apartment segregation now." When Harris would reach Greenbelt in the evenings, he would spend 15 minutes or so picketing a local real estate office, agents for the apartment house in which he lives. Then he would go home to his wife and child.

As a result of these activities, the Harris family has been troubled by threats, vandalism and scribbled messages of abuse. The neighbors are cool, and some will not allow their children to play with Harris's six-year-old daughter.

Who is George Harris? What does he want?

Harris grew up on a farm in West Virginia, one of eight children. He says he grew up "just as prejudiced as anyone could possibly be," and the first negro he remembers seeing had been tarred and feathered. Harris was 15 at the time.

To the question "Where were you educated?" he replies, "I wasn't." He joined the navy at the age of 16 and served for eight years, sharing a room for two years with "the blackest man you'd ever want to meet."

"I can't say I ever really got to know him," Harris went on. "But I started to become aware of the problems he had. It was very embarrassing for both of us to talk about it. It took quite a few years for me to intellectually overcome my feelings about negroes, and I probably still haven't completely, emotionally."

"I still like to think of what I'm doing as a way to get people to think about their prejudice. Once you get to intellectually feel it's wrong, you can try to fight it."

Harris has been active in various civil rights groups for some time, but he says he was increasingly bothered by the question, "What can I do personally?" He was never able to answer the question until the thought occurred to him that he lived in a segregated apartment house and perhaps he ought to try to change it.

"Some people say, 'What does he care? He lives in an apartment—he's going to move.'" Harris responds this. "I love Greenbelt and I want to stay here," he declared, and as for the harassment he is experiencing because of the unpopularity of some of his activities, he added: "I can't run and hide in the town I live in and want to build a home in."

He plans in the future to restrict his civil rights activities to Greenbelt itself, and says a small group of residents will join him on the picket line. "I feel I will have a lot of support, although not a lot of active support," says Harris. "Many people in town are concerned about segregation here."

What about the charges that Harris himself, is a trouble-maker and is causing problems? Harris maintains: "There's a problem because there are some apartments here that won't accept negroes. There's a problem because there are some people who will use violence against those who want to speed integration."

City Notes

Road building has been going on all over town this week. The long-awaited extension of Ridge Rd. to Lastner Lane is underway by the Reliable Construction Co., low bidders on the City's contract. They are also putting through the connection between Greenhill Rd. and Hillside, involving not only the paving of the street but the installation of sidewalks and curbing as well. With the completion of this job, old and new Greenbelt (the Lakewood subdivision) will be linked together. The extension of Lastner Lane, which will tie into the new extension of Ridge, will be completed somewhat later. The contractor responsible is currently building sidewalks and curbs leading from the previously finished portion of Lastner Lane. The paving of the street done by the Boxwood developer will also proceed in the same direction.

The opening of Greenhill Rd. into Hillside opened up two new problems, which were considered in a special city council meeting Monday night. One was to limit the speed of through traffic on Greenhill Rd. For this reason council authorized the installation of a four-way stop on Greenhill at the intersection of Orange Ct. and Greenway Pl. The other question involved the possible barricading of Greenhill from Hillside until all of the paving of Ridge is completed. Council decided, however, to make the new street accessible to traffic immediately.

Another major piece of roadwork was the final surfacing of Lakeside extended in the Lakecrest subdivision. This work has not yet received inspection from the city, however, a necessary step before approval can be given to accepting the street from the contractor for maintenance purposes.

The city crew, meanwhile, finished the patching of the pavement on Crescent Rd. and put in a large patch on Ridge Rd. They also resurfaced most of the sidewalk between Parkway and St. Hugh's Church building up the grade so that, hopefully, water will run off rather than on to the walkway. Several broken pieces of sidewalk in the Center mall were also patched with asphalt and two new benches installed near the drug-store. The high school boys on the city crew have been doing line marking on streets throughout the city.

The excavation of Greenbelt Rd. at Southway is being conducted by the telephone company. Two or three telephone circuits at that point need repair, a spokesman said.

It's The Law

The Police Dept. has requested that the following ordinance be printed. Ordinance No. 598, To Prohibit Disorderly Conduct in Public Places, passed by Council Dec. 7, 1964.

(a) It shall not be lawful for any person or persons to congregate or assemble in any street, avenue, alley, road, highway or mall, or in or around any public building or enclosure, so as to crowd, obstruct, or incommode the free use of any such street, avenue, alley, road, highway or mall, or any foot pavements thereof, or the free entrance into any public or private building or enclosure; and (b) It shall not be lawful for any person or persons to curse, swear or to make use of any profane language, indecent or obscene words or gestures, or to engage in any disorderly conduct so as to disturb the public peace, in any street, avenue, alley, road, highway, mall, public park, public building, church, assembly room or in any other public place, or in any place where the same can be heard in any street, avenue, alley, road, highway, mall, public park or other buildings, or in any premises other than those where the offense was committed.

spaces program has now been received from the National Capital Regional Planning Council and the MNCPPC. Approval is also expected from the Metropolitan Washington Council of Governments.

Today and tomorrow city manager James K. Giese was planning to attend a conference for more than 300 city managers of municipalities of under 50,000 population called by Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey. Purpose of the conference is to acquaint city officials with government programs available to them and to acquaint federal officers with the problems of small cities.

SWIM TEAM NEWS

Greenbelt's swimmers stroked to a very narrow margin of victory over a strong Summit Hill Team: 229 Greenbelt to 225 Summit Hill. The hair's breadth finish almost ruled out all possibility of Greenbelt retaining the Division Championship. Summit Hill led by 20 points at half time. Victory margin hung on the referees considered decision to recognize an official tally which recorded that Greenbelt girls mixed age medley relay group won their event. Unfortunately this ruling will be formally protested by Summit Hill. Under pressure from Summit Hill swimmers only Susan LaRue and Bernard Penny qualified as new members of Coach Dennis Adams Blue Ribbon Club. Of course the old timers controlled their usual share of victories.

The Greenbelt Swim Team does not meet this Saturday but there will be a B-team competition with Carrollton on Wednesday, August 3 for swimmers who do not regularly swim in first or second place on either team. Transportation and officials will be needed and volunteers are asked to call Mrs. Penney 474-6315. The team will leave from the pool at 8 a.m.

CORRECTION

In the July 14 News Review, city manager James Giese was erroneously reported as saying that a new post office next to Suburban Trust Company would result in a significant loss of parking places. What he actually told council was that there would be some loss of parking places, but the loss would not be significant.

Where To Go

(clip and save)

It is summertime again, and therefore vacation time; and for many families, it is the time for packing the tent or trailer and heading off for the big outdoors. For the benefit of such campers we list here information about some of the more popular campgrounds easily reached from Greenbelt.

Greenbelt Park has the closest campground and is a perfect choice when trying out for the first time a new tent - or the reactions of some junior family member, for that matter. There are 84 new campsites (more under construction) in the forest near the southern end of the park and since this is the main campground for visitors to Washington, D. C., they tend to get used fairly heavily during the summer months. To reach the campground, enter the park from Greenbelt rd., turn right onto the main road passing the park and right again about 2 miles further down.

Wheaton Regional Park is administered by the Maryland National Capital Park and Planning Commission and has 10 campsites set in a large circle in the woods west of Kemp Mill road. Unlike other campsites listed here, which cannot be reserved and are made available on a "first come - first served" basis, those in Wheaton Park have to be reserved by calling MNCPPC (589-1480). The sites are quite large and well separated, being intended more for boy-scout troop use than for family camping. They are not accessible by car and you have to lug in your equipment - 100 yards for sites 1 and 10, 200 yards for 2 and 9 and more for others. Sites 6 and 7 are best entered from the nature center off Glenallen road.

Compared to others listed here, the campground is rather rustic, with little more than pit toilets and a water tap for each campsite. On the other hand, the park (unlike Greenbelt Park) offers many trails, a nature center, riding stables and of course that famous train ride for the youngsters, the Wheaton Express.

Prince William Forest is a 12,290 acre national park adjoining Interstate rte. 95 near Triangle, Va., about 20 miles south of the Capital Beltway. There are 120 campsites for tents or tent trailers, 8 sites for group camping (15-100 campers) and 66 trailer sites with electricity and water facilities. The park is reached by turning west at the Triangle interchange (Va. rte. 619) of Interstate rte. 95 and contains a nature museum and many trails. For more details write the Park Superintendent, Triangle, Va., or call 703-875-2470.

Shenandoah National Park, less than 100 miles away, has steadily expanded its campground facilities during the last few years:

Big Meadows, the nearest campground in the park, has 187 tent and 60 trailer sites, occupying a relatively sparsely wooded area at an elevation of about 3500 feet. It is very popular in the summer season and during that period campers are often advised to use the nearby Lewis Mountain campgrounds (26 sites). Big Meadows has extensive facilities, including grocery, stable, lodge and visitors' center. There are many easy trails including those to Dark Hollow Falls, Black Rock Overlook and Lewis Falls.

Loft Mountain is a new and large campground (176 tent and trailer sites, and 73 more accessible by trail) located on a mountaintop - elevation 3300 - about 30 miles south of Big Meadows, and has a superb all-around view. There are fewer facilities than at Big Meadows but the area is being rapidly developed.

The Blue Ridge Parkway is the extension southward of the Shenandoah National Park. The two nearest campgrounds on it are:

Otter Creek (elevation about 1000) located in a shady grove off the Parkway 3 miles north of the gap by which the James River cuts through the Blue Ridge. There are 42 tentsites, 25 trailer sites and some visitor facilities; at the crossing of the James there is a visitors' center and a restored section of shipping canal.

School Registration For New Students

New families moving into Prince Georges County who will have children attending a junior high school or senior high school this fall should register their children at the school serving the area in which they live.

Registration may be completed on any day during the summer with the exception of Saturdays and Sundays, between 9 a.m. and 3 p.m.

If parents do not know which school their child should attend, they may obtain this information by calling the Board of Education office in Upper Marlboro. Telephone: 627-4800, extension 315.

Peaks of Otter (approx. elev. 3000) has a large campground - 80 tentsites, 62 trailer sites - set on a slope (but with level sites) on the side of Sharp Top, one of the twin peaks of Otter. Extensive Facilities - visitor center, grocery, lodge. The peak of Sharp Top (3870 ft., outstanding view) may be reached by buses running at hourly intervals or by trail.

The National Forests include George Washington Nat. For. and Jefferson Nat. For. in Virginia and Monongahela Nat. For. in West Virginia. They are administered by the U.S. Forest Service, under the Department of Agriculture (unlike the National Park Service which falls under the jurisdiction of the Dept. of the Interior) and include many well-maintained campgrounds. Most of them have flush toilets (though usually no electricity), individual campsites, trails and supervising rangers; they are generally set beside lakes and streams, making them popular with fishermen. Among them:

Sherando Lake (P.O. Lyndhurst, Va.), in a valley near the northern end of the Blue Ridge Pkwy., is large (120 sites) and has extensive facilities. There are swimming and fishing in the lake, which is adorned by a pretty island, boats may be rented, supplies are for sale and evening programs are held for visitors.

Cave Mountain Lake (c/o U.S. Forest Service, Natural Bridge Station, Va.), off the Blue Ridge just south of the James River, is smaller (39 tentsites, 5 trailers) but also has swimming facilities. It is within short drive of Natural Bridge and a scenic (but narrow) gravel road leads from it to the Blue Ridge Pkwy. near Peaks of Otter.

Lake Sherwood (c/o Supervisor, Monongahela Nat. For., Elkins, W. Va.) north of White Sulphur Springs, West Virginia, has 96 sites near a large (167 acre) lake at about 3000 ft. elevation. Swimming, rental boats and fishing are available and a grocery is located nearby.

Elizabeth Furnace (c/o District Ranger, U.S. Forest Service, Edinburg, Va.) has 25 sites by a stream and is a short drive from Front Royal. A 4.4 mile trail leads to

by Punchin' Judy

This is your fashion reporter, Mme. Punchin', speaking to you from the style capital of Greenbelt, Md.

We regret that we were scooped by other publications and cannot be the first to bring you up-to-the-minute reports about the you-know-who wedding. Also we didn't make it to Paris this season since our generous travel allowance was completely exhausted by trips to City Council and GHI meetings.

But don't panic, don't stop reading. We do have a most exciting fashion first for you. After weeks of waiting, after endless hours of suspense the paper dress we ordered some weeks ago has arrived. The one we received is a sleeveless shift in a bandana pattern, reminiscent of the kerchiefs used by railroadmen of the Casey Jones era. The material is soft and has a clothly feel to it. We are looking forward to wearing it soon to an appropriate occasion such as, for instance, somebody's paper anniversary.

According to the manufacturer's instructions there are certain hazards to a paper dress. It cannot be washed since that would remove the fire retarding treatment so it must be discarded after a certain period of wear. It would pain us to discard such a fascinating item, and we were glad to have the manufacturer remind us that the garment eventually would make a really wild polishing cloth.

We can envisage a whole line of toss-away paper outfits in the near future. Eventually every house erected will have built in dispensers in each room for paper sox, paper shoes, paper suits and paper unmentionables. After a while, the only ones wearing fabric clothes may be paper dolls.

Only one thing distresses us. We had originally ordered two paper dresses. The one we did not receive was a black and white pop-art print. Apparently the paper company did not consider us a suitable prospect for a pop-art dress. We feel rather hurt and chagrined about the whole thing, and may design our own paper dress in retaliation. Perhaps we can whip up a little mod number out of back issues of the Greenbelt News Review.

CIVIL RIGHTS MOTORCADE

A civil rights motorcade from the University of Maryland to Greenbelt and back again took place Tuesday, July 26. It was led by Greenbelter George Harris of ACCESS (Action Coordination Committee to End Segregation in the Suburbs), and was supported by the University Fair Housing Committee.

The caravan which consisted of about 15 cars carrying signs such as, "Segregation is Un-American and Undemocratic" and "Black Money is as Green as White Money," was led by Harris on a blue scooter.

The motorcade left the university at 5:30 p.m. and reached Greenbelt's Center shortly before 6. Policemen from the Greenbelt and Prince Georges County forces were on hand to control traffic.

Phoebe Waldman

Phoebe Blanche Waldman of 19-D Parkway died on July 22. She is survived by a daughter Mildred L. Harris, and sons Joseph M. and Robert F. She is also survived by four grandchildren.
